

About MEF Database

The MEF Database has become a very important and effective instrument for General Department of Policy (GDP), especially the Department of Statistics and Economic Analysis to be responsive to day-to-day demands for better economic statistics. MEF database is the data warehouse of economic indicators and some other development indicators. It is a computer program tool for storage, retrieval, and dissemination of a wide range of data from different period and sources, including administrative, national accounts, household surveys, and population census. Information can be visualized in a table and graphical format. The selection of MEF Database indicators are entirely based on Cambodia's macroeconomic modelling and user's experience. MEF Database is a cost-effective integrated database system when it comes to updates and maintenances.
